EDITOR'S CHAIR.

HOW THINGS LOOK FROM OUR STAND POINT.

The Opinion of The Editor and the Opinion of Others which we Can Endorse on the Various Topics of the Day.

It is the duty of honest men—true citizens—to eliminate professional politics from the management of our government affairs and substitute business principles and common sense instead.

What about over-production now? Who will have the cheek and brass to tell you about it, when to day there are from 10,000 to 20,000 people actually starving in the Great State of Texas.

The President of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture favors the Government's adopting the county free mail delivery, believing that the mounted carriers could take, not only the mails, but weather reports.

God gave the fruitful earth to his children for homes, to hold in fee while Time endures. He did not give it to a preferred few and condemn the remainder to wander, strangers in the land of their Father, says the Democrat.

Mr. Justice Harlan, of the United States Supreme Court, and Hon. John Morgan, United States Senator from Alabama, have been selected by the President as arbitrators on the part of the United States in the Behring sea arbitration.

The Chicago Sentinel says, "don't spend any more breath howling about trusts till after you have tried some practical method of getting rid of them." That is one of the objects the Alliance has in view, and one that it will accomplish if every good citizen will lend their help.

Selling themselves to the highest bidder, says the Columbian Dragon of some of the politicians, the leader in our national dishonor have become millionaires, who purchase their re-el ction in the open and most shameless manner, to launch again upon the vortex of social excesses, shameless debauches and political treachery.

The programme of the commencement exercises at the University this year is very interesting. The oration will be delivered by Senator Carlisle, of Ky. Addresses will also be made by Col. A. M. Waddell and Prof. Chas. D. McIver. The reception and Glee Club entertainment will add very much to the pleasure of both students and visitors.

THE CAUSE SIR?

What answer do you make when a story is told by pointing you to 9,000,000 mortgaged homes, $30,000,000,000 of mortgaged and bonded indebtedness, and the thousands of homeless wanderers starving in this land of plenty and prosperity.

GOOD ENOUGH.

We need no bonds, says the Herald, on which to base an issue of money. The property of a nation is good enough security. If there are bonds they should bear no interest. It is too much to ask a people to pay interest on borrowed money, and then ask them to pay interest on bonds that secure it.

SENATOR JOHN BARBOUR DEAD.

U. S. Senate Barbour died suddenly at Washington, D. C., last Saturday. He was sick only a few minutes. Heart failure being the cause of his death.

Senator Barbour represented Virginia in the Senate. Was a man highly esteemed by all, and his death is a great loss to the Senate.

POSTAL REFORM.

This subject is not attracting the careful study and attention which its importance demands. Our proposed reform is to have a free delivery in country towns and rural districts as is now had in the larger cities. The Richmond Dispatch with its proverbial accuracy on such subjects, and its deep interest in the improvements of the country well says in favor of this proposed reform:

"It must be recollected that the city merchants and other city people will derive as much benefit from the free delivery of mail matter in the country towns as will the inhabitants of those towns. It is, therefore, not a scheme for city people to characterize as extravagant or wasteful because it will not pay from the start as the present system of free delivery has paid."

WHY?

The bitterest tirade against the Alliance ever delivered from an American rostrum was the speech of Col. R. Z. Linney, the Alexander county Republican leader, at Watauga court last week. The Lenoir Topic, which gives a synopsis of the speech, says it was the sensation of the week. Next.—Morgan ton Herald.

WHAT IS THE CAUSE?

The Citizen presents the following sad figures, which should awaken every true man of our country, and make them seek the cause, and demand the remedy for it:

"Twenty years ago it was estimated that the producing classes owned three-fourths of the wealth of the nation; to-day only about one-fourth of the nation's wealth is in the hands of the producing classes, yet the wealth of the nation has been doubled in the same period. They have lost, in comparison to the increase of wealth, two-thirds of their wealth in the last twenty years."

HONEST MONEY.

We hear a great deal just now being said about "honest money." The Republicans are as loud mouthed about it as any one else. But they give us no idea what they mean. The true test for honest money is, how many dollars will a day's work purchase, or how much interest or principle will its products buy? If it will purchase less dollars to-day than one year ago, or if its products will pay less interest or debt principle, then labor has decreased in value or money has increased, and is therefore dishonest. But if they stand the same there the dollar is honest. Now how many of those politicians and plutocratic newspapers who have been howling about the "honest money" want that kind of money? That is the kind of money the Alliance wants. That is the kind that plutocracy does not want.

POLITICAL POINTS.

Tillman (Alliance Governor) will be nominated by the Democrats of South Carolina.

Henry C. Payne, member of the Republican Executive Committee, said, at Milwaukee, Wis., that Jacob Sloat Bassett would succeed J. S. Clarkson, chairman of the National Committee, providing Mr. Bassett would accept the office.

The Prohibition party claim to be organized in Northampton county.

Gov. Northen, Alliance man, will nominated by the Georgia Democrats.

The Pennsylvania Republicans have endorsed Harrison for re-nomination.

The Washington Post says that ex-Governor Campbell, of Ohio, is an avowed candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

John H. Williamson, colored, will contest the election of John Nichols as a delegate from the Raleigh district to the Republican National Convention.

Rev. Sam Small joined a sub-Alliance in Fulton county, Ga., preparatory to running for Congress in the Atlanta district.

President Harrison's friends claim that he has 225 delegates secured. To get the nomination he needs 449.

A ticket talked of by the Silver men at the National Capitol is headed by Senator Teller, of Colorado, and Col. L. L. Polk, of North Carolina.

ADVERTISING DID IT.

Editor—Who says that advertising doesn't bring results?

Printer—What's the matter now?

Editor—Why, just look at this: Major Jones advertised for a wife last week, and six hours afterwards he got one, and a whole family thrown in, and committed suicide next day!—Atlanta Constitution.

Prof. Drummond has well said: "Christ built no church, wrote no book, left no money, erected no monuments; yet show me ten square miles anywhere on earth without Christianity where the life of man and the purity of woman are respected, and I will give up Christianity."

The geological survey of the State is now in active progress. Quite a fine working force is in the field. Much will be done this year. Just now coal is receiving special study.

It is said that Col. Elliott F. Shepard, of the N. Y. Mail and Express, never reads a Democratic paper. You know too Col. Shepard is considered the d— fool in America.

In the history of the world the men noted for great wealth have not been noted as great statesmen. —St. Joseph Herald.

Don't Take Our Word,

But call your druggist to one side and ask him privately which of all the remedies advertised to cure Rheumatism he would recommend. If he is posted, and conscientious, he will tell you that Dr Drummond's Lightning Remedy is the only one that offers a reward of $500 for a case it will not cure, and in ordinary cases the money is returned when one bottle does not cure. With sensible people this is the strongest recommendation. Price $5 per bottle. Sent to any address prepaid on receipt of price. Drummond Medicine Co, 48 50 Maiden Lane, New York.

News from Washington.

NOTES AND ITEMS FROM CONGRESS AND WHAT IT IS DOING.

Some Bills Introduced--Personal Mention.

Chairman Holman declares himself as well satisfied with the progress the House has made on the appropriation bills, and he expresses the opinion that Congress will adjourn by August.

A bill was introduced in the Senate providing for another grade of letter-carriers, and a bill for the encouragement of silk culture in the United States was discussed and made the special order for Monday next.

The House concurred in the conference report on the Chinese exclusion bill by a vote of 185 to 28, and then took up the river and harbor appropriation bill. The House also adopted a resolution calling on the Attorney-General for information as to whether the sugar trust has violated the anti-trust law, and, if so, whether prosecutions have been instituted for such violation.

Up to the present time not a single public building bill has been passed by the House contrary to the experience of all previous Congresses in late years.

The United States Senate held a brief and uninteresting session. It passed a bill appropriating $50,000 for the erection of a public building at Charlottesville, Va.

In the pension investigation, Representative Enloe charged that Secretary Noble was withholding important papers.

The democratic members of the ways and means committee held a conference on the subject of free iron ores, refined sugars and lumber.

The House was again in committee of the whole on the civil sundry appropriation bill, and by a close vote struck out an appropriation of $620,500 for the purchase of a site for the proposed new mint in Philadelphia. Mr. Reed presented the report of the minority of the ways and means committee opposing the passage of the bill to admit silver lead-ore free of duty.

The Senate today confirmed the nominations of T. Jefferson Coolidge, of Massachusetts, to be Minister to France.

The House public lands committee engaged in investigating the leases to the Yellowstone Park Association heard the testimony of President Oakes.

In the United States Senate the river and harbor bill was reported back from the committee on commerce with amendments. Consideration of the naval bill was resumed and an interesting debate took place on the subject of government expenditures. Mr. Gorman made a speech in which he said he did not see how they could be reduced under existing conditions. Mr. Mills made an earnest plea in favor of economy. The Senate adjourned until Monday.

The Colored Baptist Convention adjourned to call upon the President and present to him the resolutions about outrages on negroes in the South.

Secretary Foster, in answer to a House resolution, has admitted that warrants and requisitions upon the Treasury amounting to $5,655,866 were presented during February and "held up" until March. He pleads in extenuation "press of other business." This charge which was made by democratic members of the House and by others has been persistently denied by republicans in and out of the Treasury department. The Secretary's statement shows how much dependence can be placed upon republican denials.

The President signed the Chinese exclusion bill last Tuesday and it is now a law.

The House has passed the river and harbor appropriation bill. It carries an appropriation of about $21,000,000.

The House last week passed the free binding twine bill by a vote of 183 to 47—three Democrats voting against the bill and two Republicans for it.

Representative Pierce, of Tennessee, a strong free coinage man, claims to have secured the signatures of 105 Democratic Representatives to a request for a cloture rule on the Bland silver bill, leaving but eight more to be secured for the required majority. If the necessary signatures are secured the bill will come up again.

The People's money will abolish child-labor—will take the cupids and cherubs from the whirling wheels and clattering hells of factories, and the mines, dark prison drudgery, and let them out to play in the sunlight, on the green of the heaven at hand. O Lord, give us the People's Money and let the children out to play. Amen!—Kingdom of Heaven at Hand.

It is almost impossible for one to become excessively rich without making many others correspondingly poor.—Adam Smith.

THE SOLDIERS OF GEN. LEE.

Why Did They Desert Him?

(Special Correspondent.)

Sometime early in the month of March, 1865, our Brigade (known as Iverson's Brigade) was detached from the main Army of Gen. Lee and marched down into North Carolina to the Roanoke River and deployed on the south bank of that stream for the purpose of preventing as far as possible any further desertion from the army, as they would have to cross that River on their way to the South, also to catch those who might attempt to do so, and send them back to the Army.

Subsequently we were recalled, for on the evening of 22nd of that month we received marching orders for an early hour the next morning to rejoin Lee's army at Petersburg, Va., it being at that time very closely besieged by the army of Gen. Grant, so by forced marches we reached the camp of the main army late in the evening of the 24th. We then took a little rest and ate our supper, which we carried in our haversacks. Then under cover of the darkness we were marched close up to Gen. Lee's line of defences; we then knew that trouble was at hand, and sure enough the next morning just before twilight our pickets were ordered to charge upon the Yankee pickets, which they did with so much surprise and precision, that they either killed or captured nearly every one to a man; our line of battle then doubled quicked to the enemies breast-works and not a Yankee soldier was to be seen at the works—these works could be crossed only by narrow defiles at intervals, just wide enough to pass through in single file. At one of these passes—the one through which our portion of the line had to pass, stood one or two officers of rank, one of them was Gen. Walker, of Va., about half drunk with a file of soldiers with guns and bayonets—these officers were cursing and damning and daggering the poor soldiers with sabres and bayonets as they would pass, inflicting some bloody wounds—an old veteran who had championed many a battle field, and had won glory after glory in many bloody struggles—brave men who had shouted victory on the fields of Cold Harbor, Manasses, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, and suffered defeat at Gettysburg, where the heavy guns and the small armies roared, thundered and rattled both day and night for three days; and again at the Wilderness where men met and grabbled with each other like tigers in a hand to hand struggle for victory.

Soldiers, whose valor had made a fame for Gens. Lee and Jackson's Army that was world wide, then to be treated thus was more than brave men like to bear, for that night over 200 men left the army. Had Gen. Lee seen this treatment, he would have sent Gen. Walker to the rear with the stamp of shame upon his name. Many is the time when these brave soldiers had gladdened the hearts of their beloved commanders. W. A. PETERSON.

A DAY OF RECKONING COMING.

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, in an address to saloon-keepers, closes with this strong paragraph:

"I tell you plainly that you will meet your customers one day when there will be no counter between you. When your work is done on earth and you enter the reward of your business all the souls of the men whom you have destroyed will crowd around you and pour their bitterness in your cup. They will show you their wounds and say, 'You made them'; and point to their unquenchable thirst, and say, 'You kindled it'; and rattle their chains, and say, 'You forged it.' Then their united groans will smite your ear, and with the hands out of which you once picked the sixpences and the dimes they will push you off the verge of great precipices; while rolling up from beneath, and breaking among the crags of death, will thunder, 'Woe to him that giveth his neighbor drink!'"—Ex.

BIGGEST "AD." IN THE WORLD.

The largest advertisement in the world is that of the Glasgow News, cut in shape of flower beds on the side of a hill back of Ardenlee, Scotland. The words "Glasgow News" can be seen and plainly read at a distance of four miles; the length of each letter is 40 feet; the total length of the line, 323 feet; the area covered by the letters, 14, 845 feet.

TRADING A WOMAN FOR A KINGDOM.

The young German emperor wishes to trade his youngest sister, Margaret, for the little kingdom of Luxemburg with its army of nine officers and 300 men. The mere fact that in order to carry out the trade he has to marry the girl to a drunken prince who has more debts than his father can pay and has publicly and continually debased himself makes no difference to William. —New York World.

A Cure for Twenty Cents.

Any remedy sold at one dollar a bottle which claims to cure Rheumatism is simply an imposition, for when all expenses are deducted it leaves not more than twenty cents to represent the medicine. Dr. Drummond's Lightning Remedy, which is performing such wonderful cures that it is being prescribed by the medical faculty everywhere, is compounded at great expense from rare drugs and cannot be sold for less than Five Dollars a bottle. But it always cures. Sent prepaid to any address on receipt of price. Drummond Medicine Co, 48 50 Maiden Lane, New York.

DROP A NICKEL IN THE SLOT.

Where automatic indication lies in wait for agitation,
To weigh you and record it on the spot,
'Tis no use to hedge or higgle, for the pointer will not wiggle,
Unless you drop a nickel in the slot.

If you want from hotel waiter tender steak and good potato,
And all the nicest dishes that he's got,
He will surely entertain you with the best that's on the menu
If you only drop a nickel in the slot.

In a "parlor car" or "sleeper," in a "flyer" or a "creeper,"
Fee the porter for the choicest chair or cot;
It secures you the best places, cheerful looks and smiling faces
If you always drop a nickel in the slot.

If you want a politician to secure you a position,
And he'd like to, but he knows that he cannot—
Your surest way to win him, is not to urge nor chin him,
But just you drop a nickel in the slot.

For a weary, wobbling sinner, who, returning late from dinner,
With uncertain step seeks home—that "dearest spot;"
'Twould beat the "Equine Paradox," to ride home on a letter box,
Having but to drop a nickel in the slot.

If you love some pretty daughter, and she let's you know you've caught her,
But her loving father thinks he'd rather not;
Don't you argue with the "pincom," just show up a handsome income,
That's the way to drop a nickel in the slot.

You will find the same variety in all grades of good society,
For money is the basis of the plot;
You can rake in invitations, with the entree to most stations,
If you only drop a nickel in the slot.

So through life in all your gettings, fortune, fun and all abettings
That go to keep a boiling in the pot,
It's the coin that has the chrism to start up the mechanism,
You must always drop a nickel in the slot.

—J. Harry Stedman.

A Little Boy's Fun.

American Mother—Where in the world have you been all this time? I've been worried to death.

Little Son—Only down street a little ways, down to the dock.

"Horrors! I told you not to go on that dock."

"Oh, I didn't go on the dock. I went down alongside of it to throw stones on the ice. It was great fun."

"Oh!"

"Yes, and the stones didn't go through, the ice was so thick."

"It has been melting for some days."

"Oh, there's plenty of ice there yet. It was so thick I walked out a little way, and it didn't crack hardly at all."

"Humph!"

"And when I walked it didn't wave up and down scarcely any. So I put on my skates to see if it was further"—

"Skates! You told me your skates were at a shop being sharpened."

"Yes'm. I just got 'em. They're awfully nice and sharp. I skated all over the river with them."

"Merciful"—

"Oh, it was such fun; but I went through an airhole."

"Horrors!"

"It was real funny how it was. I went in one airhole, and a man pulled me out of another one farther down. So I heard. I don't remember anything about it, but it was awfully jolly. Then they took me to a hospital."

"What?"

"That's what they said. And the doctor did something, I don't know what, for two hours, they said. I was asleep. I guess I got sleepy 'cause I sat up so late las' night studyin. Then the nurses dried my clothes, an when I woke up they sent me home in a queer wagon all full of cushions. It was awful nice."—Good News.

Helen became excited and called out, "Papa, see; Marg'eet's swallowed a dream!"

PERSONAL MENTION.

Of Some Prominent People of This State.

President Geo. T. Winston, of the State University, delivered an able address in the graded school building in Wilson last Friday night.

Senator Vance is at his country home near Asheville. He will be at Charlotte 20th, and has promised to attend the Teachers' Assembly at Morehead this season.

It is whispered that Eaves is to be the Republican candidate for Governor. He will have the pleasure of putting himself up, since it appears that he and his committee are to do the nominating.

Thomas R. Pepper, one of Winston's prominent young business men, who was sued for breach of promise by Miss Emma Smith, of that city, for $5,000 damages, has compromised the case for $500.

Col. E. G. Harrall, of Raleigh, has been to Wrightsville to make arrangements for the encampment of the State Guard. He says there will be abundant supply of excellent water.

Hon. F. M. Simmons has moved from Winston to New Berne.

Prof. T. J. Simmons, formerly of Wake Forest, now of Georgia, will spend the summer in Germany.

Rev. Dr. Hume, Professor of English literature in the State University, has been engaged to lecture on English literature before Glass Falls summer school.

E. F. Moore, late President of the People's National Bank, was convicted in Fayetteville last week for false pretense. The sentence of the court was five years in the State penitentiary, from which the defendant took an appeal to the Supreme Court.

C. T. Bailey, Jr., son of Rev. C. T. Bailey, editor of the Biblical Recorder, has allied himself with the Republican party, says the Raleigh Signal.

Dr. G. W. Sanderlin will deliver the literary address before the Franklin and Lee Societies of Horner school, Oxford, at the commencement, June 2nd.

WHAT HAS BECOME OF THE MONEY?

Alliance lecturers and others are constantly writing to the Mercury for information as to how much money we have now in circulation; how much it has been concentrated, when and how. For the information of inquirers upon this vital question, the Mercury states that there is now in active circulation among the people about $500,000,000 or $7.80 per capita, and that in 1866 we had $52 per capita.

The act of Congress passed Sept. 12, 1865, provided that legal tender notes might be converted into interest bearing bonds to the extent of $10,000,000 in six months and $40,000,000 per month thereafter.

By act of March 7, 1867, $50,000,000 3 per cent. bonds were issued for legal tender notes then held by banks as lawful reserves.

By act of Feb. 3, 1868, $94,000,000 legal tenders were converted into 6 per cent. bonds.

By act of July 25, 1868, $25,000,000 more legal tenders were retired and 3 per cent. bonds issued therefor.

By act of March 18, 1879, the legal tenders and 5 20 bonds were made payable in coin and the people lost $500,000,000.

By act of July 14, 1890, $1,500,000,000 were issued at an average interest of 3¾ per cent.

By act of 1873 Congress demonetized silver.

By act of Jan. 14, 1875, $50,000,000 fractional currency was changed into 5 per cent. bonds.

By act of 1878, $100,000,000 5 per cent. bonds were issued for $100,000,000 in gold coin to lock up in the treasury. —Southern Mercury.

THE PARTY DRINK.

A couple of opposing candidates for Congress were riding along the road during the campaign to meet a joint appointment at a back country seat, and it was dry, hot and dusty. At the foot of a hill they came upon a pleasant, cool looking house with a woman sitting in the shade on a long porch in front. They pulled up at the gate, saluted the lady, and the Democratic candidate said:

"Madam, can we get a drink here?"

"Air you a Democrat or Republican?" she inquired.

"I'm a Democrat, madam, and my friend here is a Republican."

"John," called the woman to some one inside, "there's two gents here that wants a drink. Bring out a tin full of liquor and a tumbler of water."—National Bulletin.

THE BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG.

We were told by a Confederate officer some years ago that the battle of Gettysburg, which was the turning point in our Civil War, was decided in favor of the Union by a balky mule. The Union troops and the Confederates were racing to reach a high point, the possession of which practically decided the battle; the Confederates were blocked by a balky mule, and the Union troops got the position and won the battle. The suicide of young Mr. Bradley, Mayor of Rock Paint, N. C., has its peculiarly sad as well as mysterious developments. He had been paying devoted attention to a young lady, and her rejectment is believed to be the cause of his self-destruction. He was a young man of promise and bright parts.

"Let the States that elect select" is the happy hit of the New York World in referring to the candidacy of Mr. Cleveland. For of the long list of States that have declared for him, not one of them gave him an vote in 1888. Yet is it true that these States must dictate the candidate to those which have him to elect?

The ministers of Winston-Salem have caused great surprise and much talk by their recent action towards the Twin City Pleasure Club, by withdrawing as honorary members of it, and asking that their names be stricken from the roll. The reasons assigned by the ministers for the action is that they can't conscientiously belong to any organization that allows billards and cards for amusements and keep its doors open on Sundays.

It appears quite difficult for many to realize the poverty of the people. They have no idea of how the masses have to raise these enormous taxes laid on them and, furthermore, they don't care. As an example, the United States Senate so far has reported one bill for our river and harbor improvement which foots up to $22,490,118. To settle that one expense alone of our great statesmen it would take eight hundred thousand bales of cotton.

THAT "EXCEPTION CLAUSE."

July 17, 1861, and February 12, 1862, the Republican Congress of the U. S. passed an act authorizing the issue of $60,000,000 of non-interest bearing treasury notes. These notes, known as "demand notes, were made "legal tender for all debts public and private." They were received always at par with both gold and silver. There was certainly nothing wrong about that. Why do we hear so much about that "exception clause?" No, there was nothing wrong about that, but there was something wrong about what followed. Only a few days after the passage of this act, we find that ten representatives of British and American gold assembling in Washington City, and on February 25, nine days after they reached there, that the Congress of the people do their damning work—passing that famous "exception clause"—which provides that these "demand notes" (greenbacks) should be a legal tender for all debts public and private except "duties on imports and interest on the public debt."

The enormity and magnitude of that famous crime against the people can only be comprehended, says Mr. Reynolds, writing on this subject, when we consider that each and every letter in that clause has cost the people, directly or indirectly, over one hundred million of dollars. It has cost more than our armies in the field, and furthermore it laid the foundation for a system of usurption that is now taxing and draining the creative power of the people to its utmost, and it bids fair to continue to reap its fugal fruits from a tax cursed people.

[We propose showing next week how it is that this "exception clause" has proved to be such an instrument for greedy and unjust gains, and to give practical examples illustrating it.]

FOOLS AND CHILDREN OFTEN ASK QUESTIONS NOBODY CAN ANSWER.

Soldiers and Sailors Fight and Pay the Bills--Bankers and Gold Bugs Scheme and Reap the Profits--Take Your Medicine.

Son. Pa, what is a war debt?

Father. It is a part of the cost of the war, my son, that has not been paid.

S. Who paid for the war?

F. The government, my child.

S. Where did the government get the money to pay for it?

F. Borrowed some of it from the bankers and made some of it.

S. How much did the government borrow of the bankers?

F. About $150,000,000.

S. Was this all gold, Pa?

F. No, my son, about seventy million dollars of it was gold and silver, the balance was paper money.

S. How much did the war cost, Pa?

F. Nearly four thousand million dollars.

S. Then, where did the government get the rest of the money to pay for the war?

F. It made it, my son. The greenbacks which you see are government money.

S. Who did the government pay the greenbacks to?

F. To the soldiers and sailors and the men who furnished them with provisions, clothes and guns.

S. Does the government owe the soldiers and other men anything?

F. No, my son, it paid them in greenbacks.

S. But who does the government owe the war debt to, then?

F. To the bankers and bondholders.

S. But you said these men only loaned the government one hundred and fifty million dollars?

F. Yes, that is all.

S. Why did they not loan the government more?

F. They didn't have it, my son.

S. How much does the government owe the bankers now?

F. About ten hundred million dollars.

S. How much has the government paid them?

F. About four thousand million dollars.

S. Pa, did the bankers do any fightin'?

F. No, my child.

S. Did they furnish any food or clothes or guns?

F. They do not work, my son.

S. Well, then, if they only loaned the government one hundred and fifty million dollars, and didn't do any fightin' or furnishin', and the government has made the money and paid the soldiers and the other men for doin' these things, why has the government paid the bankers four thousand million dollars, and still owe them one thousand million, when the banks only had one hundred and fifty million to start with?

F. I don't know, my child, this is too deep a question for you and me, you had better go to bed now, and go to sleep.

S. But, pa, the Republican party claims the glory of puttin' down the war, and it they paid the soldiers with money they made, and didn't borrow the money from the bankers, and then have to pay the bankers over five thousand million dollars to boot. I don't see no glory in it, do you?

F. Oh, I guess so, my son, we don't know anything about it, come now and go to bed, I'm tired.

S. But, pa, we ort to know something about it. It's part of our money aint it?

F. Mary, come and get this boy and take him to bed, he's worrying the life out of me. (Wife come and takes the boy to bed.)

F. I'm afraid if that boy keeps on he'll be a regular communist or anarchist. It does beat anything how such ideas get into a youngster's head. But after all it does seem a little strange that after paying the soldiers for fighting, the citizens for feeding them, and the factories for guns and ammunition, we still have to pay over five thousand million dollars to men who didn't fight or furnish, and only loaned the government one hundred and fifty millions. There must be something wrong. I'll ask Major McKinley.--National Reformer.

SPANKING FOR HYDROPHOBIA.

Novel Treatment for the Disease Tried with Gratifying Success.

Spanking the hydrophobia out of a boy with a wooden splint is not exactly in accord with established usage and traditions, but the experiment is, nevertheless, meeting with gratifying success at the Presbyterian hospital. The subject of this novel and not entirely painless cure is seventeen-year Hugo Eitel, the son of Emil Eitel, a saloon keeper at One Hundred and Tenth street and Fifth avenue. Young Eitel is weak minded and suffers from heart disease.

In August he visited friends in Astoria, L. I., and while there was frightened by a large black dog, which jumped over a fence and bit him on the hand and leg. Some of the neighbors asked him if he was not afraid of getting hydrophobia, and this suggestion preyed on his mind until he began to imagine that he was a victim of the dread disease and barked and frothed at the mouth. In this condition he was admitted to the hospital, and his symptoms were so strikingly like those of hydrophobia that the house surgeon, Dr. Frank Lemoyne Hupp, was for a time puzzled by the case and undecided whether or not Hugo had the real disease. The action of his heart was accelerated, he suffered from frequent and violent convulsions, he barked like a dog and frothed at the mouth.

He was so violent that it was necessary to strap him to the bed. But he manifested no abhorrence for water, and this circumstance alone led to the conclusion on the part of Dr. Hopp that the lad was shamming hydrophobia under the influence of great fear. Soothing medicine was administered, and Hugo was persuaded that he was all right. Gradually his convulsions ceased and he partook of food. He was discharged as cured.

Sunday night, after preparing for bed at home, Hugo cried out to his mother that he was afraid of a dog. Immediately he got down on his hands and knees and began to bark. Mr. Eitel was called and went to the Presbyterian hospital post haste and related the reappearance of the symptoms. Dr. Hupp agreed to take the boy once more under treatment, and he was taken to the hospital that night in the ambulance.

"We'll try spanking that boy," said the doctor. When Hugo reached the hospital he was violent, and was strapped to his couch. Then, according to a story told to a reporter Monday night at the hospital, the boy was soundly spanked with a splint such as is used in bandaging broken limbs.

The effect of the spanking was wonderful. Hugo stopped barking in short order. After the memory of the spanking had died away he tried to bark once more, but a second spanking drove out the last vestige of hydrophobia, and Hugo was the following day able to sit up and laugh with the nurses over his surprising delusion. He said he never felt better. Thursday Hugo went home, and his father has been ordered by the doctors to spank him, and spank him hard, every time he tries to bark.—New York Times.

The Minister on the Farm.

Amid the roughest rural scenes would I have every American pastor spend his summer, all through until the month of September. Congregations would be advantaged by it if for a few weeks of every year they would allow their pastors a little farm life. Three weeks at a fashionable watering place will not do the work. There is not enough salts and sulphur in all the springs to overcome the tight shoes, and the uncomfortable gloves, and the late hours, and the high living, and the dresses economical at the neck. Rather turn us out to physical work.

A sharp hoe will hack to pieces all your dyspepsia. A pruning knife will cut off the exeressences of your disposition. The dash of the shower that wets you to the skin will cool your spirit for ecclesiastical strife. Daily swinging of the ax will tone up your nerves. Tramping down the hay as it is tossed into the mow will tread into forgetfulness your little perplexities. In the wake of the plow you may pick up strength with which to battle public iniquity. Neighbors looking over the fence may think we are only weeding canteloupes, or splitting rails, or husking corn, when we are rebuilding our strength, enkindling our spirits, purifying our theology, and blessing our souls.—Dr. Talmage in Ladies' Home Journal.

Tabby as a Tramp.

Some weeks ago a family removed from Piedmont to Bismarck. Among other members of the family was the household cat. Tabby did not like the change, and for several days after her arrival at Bismarck wandered around aimlessly, mewing pitifully at the cars as they passed. One day last week the boys at the depot noticed Tabby jumping on the trucks of the southbound freight train. The conductor and brakemen were told of their extra passenger and resolved to watch her. At Hogan Tabby was still on the trucks; at Annapolis she was routed by the boys, but climbed on again before the train started; at Gad's Hill she was "fired" and chased into the brush, but again she made connections, and when the train reached Piedmont she left her seat with the air of a conqueror and trotted up town.—Ironton (Mo.) Sprains may result from the most trivial accidents. Some persons are more liable to them than others, but no one is exempt from the liability.

The Qualification.

The late Patrick Henry Cowen, a prominent Saratoga lawyer, was fond of relating the story of his admission to the bar. The committee met at Ballston, and young Cowen was the only candidate. A member of the committee remarked: "I think a single question will determine the legal qualifications of the candidate. Young man, can you name the best brand of champagne?" "I can," responded Cowen, "but for fear that your honors may suspect I am in error, I will forward to each of you a sample that will vindicate my judgment." This satisfied the committee, and Cowen was admitted. He kept his promise.—Troy Press.

THIS IS A NEW DODGE.

A Newly Married Couple Carry a Baby to Conceal the Honeymoon.

"Hain't this the tavern what Palmer runs?" asked a tall, long necked young man of Clerk Cunningham. The stranger's face was filled with snuff colored whiskers and his linen duster and badly used cowhide boots looked as if they had been worn by the Wandering Jew. He held a fat old carpetbag and three bundles in one hand and a timid looking young woman in the other. She wore a light blue gown of shimmering satin, with yellow trimmings, and held a two-year-old, bouncing baby that was eating the red paint from a toy cornet.

Drummers, politicians and loungers stopped their conversation to enjoy a few minutes of character study.

"This is the Palmer House, sir," spoke the clerk in reply to the man's query.

"I reckoned so, but you can't see no sign outside, and that kinder put me out. Down in Injiana all the taverns have signs."

"I'll tell Mr. Palmer about that."

"Now, before we talk business, I want ter know if you will kinder look out fer us in this hotel?

"When some of our folks goes to Injianapolis they call them jays, but I hain't no jay. I've traveled. I don't blow out no gas, but I be mixed up a little in a place so big as this. But I will put up here if you will look out for us and come up and tell me when the dinner gong rings."

"Happy to serve you, sir," answered the clerk with his parlor floor smile. "I will make your comfort here a personal matter. I'll send a cab up to your room if you want to ride or anything else. Register, please."

Then the fellow wrote, "Joshua Putnam, his wife and their child, Rising Sun, Ind." As he laid down his pen he pulled Mr. Cunningham's ear over the counter and whispered, "Ken I trust you with a secret?"

"Tell me all," said the clerk in the key that he used to talk in when with the Fagan and O'Regan Burlesque galaxy.

"Wal, this is our wedding trip. We war spliced Monday, an' am now honeymooning, so want good care. Don't give a durn for the expense, 'cause we'll stay a day."

Just as he said they were married Monday the little baby waved its chubby hand and caused the clerk to exclaim, "Your wedding tour?"

"Yep," whispered the man. "That's the secret. Everybody pokes so much fun at people what's just married that I vowed I'd fool 'em. So when Martha and me decided on goin to Chicago we jes borrowed Mrs. Bascom's baby. Now nobody guesses that we be a bridal party. I told you that I was no jay."

"That's a new one," muttered the clerk, as the new arrivals started on their trip to 931, the furthermost room from the office.—Chicago Herald.

A Shrewd Mother.

"My boy of ten," said a mother recently, "has heretofore been my greatest responsibility in a long journey. He is restless and likes to go to the door of the car and wander about. I never feel sure that he will stay in his seat while I read or doze. This summer I hit upon a resource, by mere chance, that got him easily through a twelve hours' ride, and some other mother of an uneasy lad may be glad to imitate it. He got hold of a time table, one on which was every station we passed, and he spent the entire trip in watching the progress of the train.

"He set his watch by the conductor's, and was as interested as the engineer in making the stations on time. Once the train lost twenty-five minutes, which was a positive boon, for until we had made that up my boy timed the distances between mile posts in his desire to watch the train's speed, and when we got 'on time' again he was as pleased and proud as if he were responsible. A time table and watch are the best of traveling companions for boys."—Her Point of View in New York Times.

The Eccentricity of Englishwomen.

It is in the conduct of Englishwomen that some fancy our British eccentricity is most markedly shown. How our sisters in ulsters and short skirts are stared at on the Continent! The air with which the distinguished foreign lady looks them over through her long handled eyeglass is nothing less than delightful. She seems to be thanking heaven she is not as they are. And yet it often happens that a little later she is fain to confess, with a sigh, that if only her own bringing up had been half as generous and free as that of the English damsel she would be a better and happier woman than she is.—All the Year Round.

One Way of Detecting Crime.

A queer plant is a native of Madagascar. Formerly its seeds, which are very poisonous, were administered to persons accused of crime. If the individual was innocent the dose excited vomiting, and his recovery was looked upon as a satisfactory vindication; but when retained in the stomach it quickly proved fatal, and guilt was thus established.—Washington Star.

RACKET STORE.

Some people cannot understand how it is the Racket Store has such a large trade, it is because we buy cheap and sell cheap, we don't believe in charging two or three prices for goods but one fair square price to everybody. We sell for the net spot cash, no time nor discount. The credit business has ruined scores of men and women, and caused them to sink to the very lowest depths of despair.

We sell for the net spot cash and by doing so we run no risk of loosing anything, and we sell so cheap that it is money in your pocket to buy from us. We are receiving new goods every week, and they are selling as fast as we can open and put them up. We are not afraid to advertise our goods, for they are just what we recommend them. We have the cheapest lot of millinery in town, and we are selling from fifteen to forty ladies hats nearly every day. Our ladies slippers and parasols cannot be beaten in price and quality. Our dress goods and notions are sure to please, for they are so cheap it is almost like giving them away. If you have not called on us just come once and you will be sure to come again if you are anxious to save some money.

Very respectfully,
MARY E. PETERSON & Co.

—We call attention to our merchants of the plan of closing the stores at 7:30. This much is due to the clerks.

—Lt. W. E. Shipp, U. S. A., was here last week giving instructions to our Military Company in the new tactics.

—Read our Campaign Offer. Speak to your friends about it, and see that they avail themselves of this opportunity.

—If you want to buy cheap goods you will not be disappointed in coming here. Our merchants are selling at very small profits.

—We should do all in our power to make the celebration of our military company a great success. It will be tomorrow.

—Remember the entertainment Friday evening for the Military Company. The festival will be opened at 2 p. m. in the vacant store between Dr. Holliday's drug store and store of Mr. T. M. Ferrell.

—We are very sorry that we have missed the Dixon sermon for the past two weeks. In a fire in Philadelphia the company furnishing these sermons were burned out and has not been able to furnish them.

He is looking very well, and is very bright and seems hopeful for his future. His friends here were glad to see him.

—The efficiency and promptness of our telegraphic communication can not be too highly spoken of. A gentleman tells us that he sent a telegram from here to Wilmington at 5 o'clock Monday evening and it reached there at 9 the next morning, nearly as long as it would have taken a man to drive through the country. This has been our experience on several occasions. We had an important telegram for the paper that had reached Warsaw, but could not get it here. It really had to be brought on the train. We will not pretend to say whose fault this is, but we think somebody is responsible.

Mrs. Marable Will Not Go to Texas.

It will be a source of great pleasure to their many friends of the State, and especially to the people of Clinton, that Mrs. Marable and family will not make Texas their future home, as we stated last week.

Mr. Forest Marable will be here a few weeks longer and will take Frank Marable back with him. Miss Daisey will return from Texas next week. Mrs. Marable will move from the Chesnutt house in the dwelling between Mr Wm. A. Johnson, and Capt. O. S. Johnson. Their leaving would have been a serious loss to our town, and it will be gratifying news to every one that this plan will be carried out.

TOWN IMPROVEMENTS.

Clean Streets and Good Lights.

The wisdom of our Commissioners has been especially shown by their efforts to clean our town. Certainly no one who ever looked around here could fail to notice the absence of care along that line. Such an effort has been needed, and we see that we are going to realize it. The authorities have been busy for the past few days cleaning up the streets, back yards and allies. We once more have clear light through clean street lamps. Our fire engines too were brought out, and hoops falling off were put on, and what should be a fire engine was at least made so it would hold water. The Commissioners tell us that this policy of cleaning the town shall be rigidly carried on.

To protect themselves and the public in general they have wisely passed the following ordinance:

"That any person who shall place any trash, litter, slops, or other things of like kind, from any store, yard, office, or residence upon any street, back yard or ally within the corporate limits of the town of Clinton shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined $20.00. But the Mayor shall have power to remit all or any part of the same. Any violations of this ordinance shall be deemed a nuisance."

Such a policy diligently carried out will prove a genuine blessing to our people now and especially this summer. Take your hats off to the Commissioners.

DISMAL.

We had a very pleasant visit to Autryville Sunday School last Sunday. The enrollment has very much increased, and the people of the neighborhood are taking a deep interest in this work. The day school will open August 1st. The music department will be under the supervision of Miss Venie Bizzell, of Fayetteville. The other teachers have not yet been selected.

Miss Georgie Cooper, that sparkling bright eyed belle of Autryville, has just returned from a visit to Clinton. Her many friends welcomed her arrival in this town, especially that one.

TROY AUTRY.

MINGO.

It was with pleasure I accepted the invitation to attend the closing exercises of Riverdale Academy, the 10th instant, Rev. E. B. Parker, principal. The exercises by the students were a perfect success—recitations, dialogues and declamations. The able address by Mr. O. C. Spears was elegantly delivered. His subject was "The Importance of Education." He kept the audience spell-bound for an hour or more.

I want to thank the good people for the nice dinner and kindness they gave us. Mr. Johnson is a worthy man, and is doing a nice work for our people. Success to the cause.

The closing exercises of Buie's Creek Academy the 12th instant was the best thing of the kind I ever attended. A very large audience was called to order at 10 o'clock a. m. The exercises were varied and interesting. At 11.30 a. m. the audience greatly cheered the introduction of the Hon. G. W. Sanderlin, L. L. D., of Raleigh, who had been invited to deliver the address. Dr. Sanderlin kept the audience perfectly enraptured for one and a half hours, amid so many difficulties as a crowd of 2,000 would undergo.

At one o'clock those good people began to spread their nice dinner for their many friends, which all enjoyed. At five o'clock the school sang the "Sweet Good Bye." At 7.30 a social meeting was opened and all had a good time

To See About a New Jail.

The committee to visit several modern jails and report to the County Commissioners on the first Monday in June left last week and examined the Wilmington jail. The committee is composed of Mr. Jule Hobbs, chairman of Board of Commissioners, and Messrs. W. E. Stevens and O. C. E. Daniel. They will recommend to the Commissioners and Justices of the Peace that a new brick jail be built, with three steel cells of the latest patent be put in. This report will be acted on first Monday in next month when the Justices of the Peace meet. We have no doubts but that a new jail will be built, and a good substantial one.

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Interesting Facts and Figures by the County Superintendent.

For the information of the public I present the following statistics, taken from the reports of 1891, and from the work of 1892, because some reports have not been received:

There are five thousand eight hundred and twenty-four white children in Sampson county between the ages of six and twenty-one years, and four thousand and forty-eight colored. The number of school districts is eighty-eight white and fifty four colored, making an average of sixty-six and two-elevenths for white districts and nearly seventy five for colored. In these districts there are seventy-three public school houses for whites, valued at (including the land) $5,726, and forty-five colored valued at $3,009.

Teachers examined since July 1st, '91: Whites, males, first grade, 23; second grade, 21; third grade, 2. White, females, first grade, 17; second, 16; third, 2 Colored, males, first grade, 6, second grade, 16; third grade, 2. Colored females, second grade, 6; third grade, 11. Total examined whites, 81; colored 41; total, 122. First grade 46, second, 59, third, 17, Total, 122. Average salary of teachers July '91, white males, $20. Females, $22 26; colored males, $22.50. Females $16 25. Length of school terms 10½ weeks. The average apportionment made January '92 is about 80½ cents per capita, and a small sum applied to necessarily weak districts.

Since December 1st, 1891, there have been fifty-eight schools taught for whites and forty for colored. The number enrolled, the average attendance and other statistics will be given when all the reports are received. The teaching for the last year, with few exceptions, has been very good, and the progress of the children has been excellent, the teachers having taken more interest in their work and many of the patrons having manifested more care in the training of their children, and having given the teachers the necessary encouragement. The length of school terms has been increased by an increase in school taxes, and in many districts there has been another increase by private subscriptions. If this were done in every district there would be no difficulty in having at least four month's school in each district and in some longer terms. This plan will make the public schools a complete success and it will be done in a few years, for there is a general improvement all along the lines. We receive all that we ought from property and poll tax; more would cripple the other interests of the county.

If we had longer terms our teachers could well afford to prepare themselves better, and nearly every district would be demanding first grade teachers, as many are now doing.

Taking all things into consideration our public schools are doing well, and there is no reason why Sampson county with all her high schools, academies and public schools, and her earnest, hard-working teachers should not be the banner county in the State.

Rev B. F. Marable, D. D.

Death that has been so busy in the ranks of the ministry during the last few months, and that has taken away so many eminent servants of God both at home and abroad, has come very close to us, and taken away from the Presbytery of Wilmington one who from its organization has been cordially recognized by his brethren as its most eminent member. It was fitting that his last labours, and almost his last breath, were spent in its service. In our last week's issue in our editorial report of Wilmington Presbytery, we spoke as follows:

Rev. Dr. B. F. Marable was present. Though for very many years his health has been infirm the mental fires have burned bright and strong, and wonderful has been the work accomplished by him for the Master. Ever since the organization of the Presbytery he has served as agent of education, a post for which his peculiar insight into human character and his admirable power of estimating mental capacity and ability, together with his disposition to help forward youths struggling to fit themselves for ministerial work, have pre-eminently qualified him. The time has come when from physical infirmity he feels unable longer to bear the strain of the service he has performed in the past, and so reluctantly he asked Presbytery to relieve him of the burden, and reluctantly the Presbytery acceded to his request. In fitting terms that Presbytery expressed their sense of Dr. Marable's past services and the reluctance with which they dispensed with them.

The Presbytery adjourned as we have said on Friday. On Friday night Dr Marable preached, but the effort overcame him and for awhile after he lay in an unconscious state. He was on partial recovery carried forward to the home of Dr. Graham at Wallace and at last accounts was somewhat improved in condition. [The we have learned since] pening above reports of Presbytery. Brethren everywhere will hope that the convalescence may proceed to restoration.]

This hope was not realized. A late as Wednesday night he rose from his bed and sat up by the fire conversing freely and interestingly with his friends. But after retiring for the night he gradually sank, passing gently away in the unconsciousness of sleep about 3 o'clock Thursday morning. He had told his brethren that it was his last attendance at a Presbytery, but we think neither he nor they had any idea that the end was so near. His mind was as clear and his thought as vigorous as at any time in his life. His sermon Friday night, while manifesting great bodily weakness was characterized, we are told, by all of his originality and intellectual power. Of his spiritual vision and strength it could be said in spite of his physical feebleness, "His eye was not dimmed nor his natural force abated."

The remains of the honored dead were taken to Clinton Thursday evening, and on Friday, from the very church in which he was received into the ministry of the Presbyterian Church, and to which the greater part of the labors of his life were given, he was borne to his last resting place His chair and the pulpit were draped in black, the loving hands of friends from his different charges had brought beautiful flowers, while the whole community, and numbers from all the churches within reach were present to pay the tribute of their love and reverence. The service was conducted by Dr. Hoge, assisted by Rev. Messrs. Shaw, McIntyre and Stanford. The sermon was from 1 Cor. 13: 12.

The materials have not yet been received for a complete sketch of Dr. Marable's life. He was born in Virginia near the North Carolina line, and was in sixty-first year of his age. He was received into the Presbytery of Fayetteville in about 1892 or '63. As he once expressed it at Synod, he "was born a Presbyterian, but had the misfortune to be born away from home." We believe it was originally upon questions of order and not of baptism that he became dissatisfied with his ecclesiastical relations. But having satisfied himself of the scripturalness both of our order and baptism, he entered the Presbyterian ministry, and supported the distinctive principles of our Church with great independence of thought and acuteness of reasoning.

Dr. Marable was a man of no ordinary powers. He was endowed with an imperial intellect that thought out its own conclusions and mastered for itself the problems of life and history. His powers of analysis would place him by the side of the foremost minds of the world. His power of expression was equal to his power of analysis. Never did he use any word but just the right word. His thought always came out clear as the light. There was a climactic and cumulative force in his method, by which each statement brightened the effect of that which preceded. He knew just where to aim and he never missed his aim. All this, however, might be said of the mere logician; but Dr. Marable added to his analytical and logical powers a loftiness of conception that came from a lofty soul, and that lent a glow and fire to all that he said He was not only a man of great intellect, but a man of great heart, and the heart warmed the sermons that the intellect created. He thought great thoughts about God and eternity, about sin and retribution, about grace and redemption but these great thoughts were not the speculations of the mind, nor the imaginings of fancy, but the teachings of the Holy Spirit to a soul that was truly humble because its thoughts and aspirations were turned upwards to that which was greater than itself. He received the things of God with the faith of a little child. And while his intellect cut through the shallow sophistries that were urged against Divine truth and revelation, yet when it came to that which was above the grasp of human comprehension, he simply wondered and adored.

Had it pleased God to endow him with a body of strength and vigor proportioned to his mental and moral gifts there is no telling what position in the Church he might not have taken. But all his life was spent in physical weakness. One of his lungs was dwarfed from his birth. For twenty five or thirty years he has been a dying man. Had he listened to the calls from fields of wide influence that frequently came to him; his career would have been one of conspicuous brilliancy—for a brief time Instead, he has banded his strength, by ministering to small flocks and avoiding the exacting demands of city congregations. Thus he prolonged his usefulness. The churches to which he ministered have gained by the loss to the world in the greatest pulpits of our metropolitan churches, North or South, no more lofty emanations of consecrated intellect could be heard, than those to which the rural congregations in the quiet villages where he labored were accustomed.

With the discipline of suffering and—though no one ever knew it—denyings of disappointed ambition (for what man with power to soar on eagle's wings would not feel the gall of a chain that contracted the limits of his activity?), there came a gentleness and patience, ripeness of Christian character and a charity of Christian graces, that poured in gentle tones to all who came under his influence As he [illegible] used to say of a fellow-sufferer who bound in closer chains than he ever [illegible] about in the same favored [illegible] mmunity [illegible] the use of a life hid [illegible] Christ [illegible] ough he can [illegible] burdened with weakness, shall have a more abundant harvest in the last day, than if listening multitudes had thronged his churches and hung upon his words? The Master knoweth best, and while we would not grudge our brother his well-earned rest, we pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth more laborers into His harvest."—The Presbyterian.

Criticism of a Young Lady.

"She would be a pretty girl but for one thing."

"What's that?" asked Charley.

George—"Her face is always covered with purple and red blotches."

Charlie—"Oh, that is easily enough disposed of. Used to be the same way myself, but I caught on to the trouble one day, and got rid of it in no time."

George—"What was it?"

Charley—"Simply blood eruptions. Took a short course of P. P. P. I tell you, it's the best blood corrector. The governor had rheumatism so bad you could hear him holler clear across the county every time he moved. He tried it, and you know what at athletic old gent he is now. CORRECT COPY.

Some persons and newspapers have been charging that the St. Louis demands of the Alliance, contained a "Soldier's plank, and other things that would be objectionable to many people. They have tried to prejudice people against the Alliance by such misrepresentations. The following is a correct and official copy of the St. Louis Demands:

PLATFORM.

FINANCE.

First—We demand a national Currency, safe, sound and flexible, issued by the general government only, a full legal tender for all debts, public and private, and that without the use of banking corporations a just, equitable and efficient means of distribution direct to the people at a tax not to exceed 2 per cent, be provided, as set forth in the sub-treaury plan of the Fatmers' Alliance, or some better system; also, be payments in discharge of its obligations for public improvements.

a. We demand free and unlimited coinage of silver.

b We demand that the amount of circulating medium be speedily increased to not less than $50 per capita.

c. We demand a graduil income tax.

d. We believe that the money of the country should be kept as much as possible in the hands of the people, and hence we demand all National and State revenue shall be limited to the necessary expenses of the Government economically and honestly administered.

e. We demand that postal savings banks be established by the Government for the safe deposit of the earnigs of the people and to facilitate exchange.

LAND.

Second—The land, including all the natural resources of wealth, is the heritage of the people and should not be monopolized for speculative purposes, ond alien ownership of land should be prohibited. All land now held by railroads and other corporations in excess of their actual needs, and all lands now owned by aliens, should be reclaimed by the Government and held for actual settlers only.

TRANSPOETATION.

Third—Transportation being a means of exchange and a public necessity, the Government should own and operate the railroads in the interest of the people.

a. The telegraph and telephone, like the post office system, being a necessity for transmission of news, should be owned and operated by the Government in the interest of the people.

The above is certified to by the whole North Carolina delegates to the St. Louis Convention. The delegates were as follows: Marion Butler, J. F. Brinson, Rev. J. C. Hoover, W. C. Wilcox, E. C. Beddingfield, P. H. Massey, J. F. Johnson, A. C. Shuford, H. M. Kent, Rev. J. C. Brown.

There are people who wish to oppose the Alliance and not being able to do so fairly or meet its speakers in argument, stoop to misrepresent and abuse,

TAYLOR'S BRIDGE.

We have a class of good farmers in this township. They work by the old rule—"get up and git"—but they can't pay off that mortgage, though they make more than ever before. You can hear their "gee-haw" at day-break, and the crackling of their stately brush piles at nine o'clock at night, though they can't pay the interest on that bank account.

The Baptist Sabbath School at Red Hill, though a small one, is moving along very nicely.

Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of "The Messenger," nor standeth in the way of "The Star," nor sitteth in the seat of moneyed editors.

But his delight is in Reform papers; and on the truth doth he meditate day and night.

And he shall be like an editor planted in the sanctum of Justice, that writeh forth his truth in his season; his paper shall not be stopped; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper.

The "moneyed press" is not so: but is like the chaff which the wind driveth away.

Therefore deceiving editors shall not stand in the hearts of patriots, nor lying reporters in the congregation of just men

For the people knoweth the way of the Reform Press: but the way of the Associated Press shall perish.

Did some one ask "who's stopping in your parts this week?" A community of farmers at this season is almost a non conductor of secular news, and if there is any cockney calling we have not heard it. However, the event of the season in elite circles will be the debut of the "charming" Miss Runabout. The event will be celebrated with great pomp and glory.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucus surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient streagth, by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure.

Alliance Department.

ALLIANCE NOTES, DISCUSSIONS AND THE DOINGS OF THE VARIOUS LODGES.

[THE CAUCASIAN was adopted as the Official Organ of the Sampson County Alliance at the meeting in January 19th, 1889.]

HIGH SAMPSON CHIPS.

These chips are pure ly of Alliance "wood" as the author is deeply dyed in the wool a pure Jeffersonian Democrat, so are the brethren throughout this section, and will adhere to our demands.

A man recently declared that he was afraid of the present political outlook. He was informed to follow the Alliance and he need not fear, but he is too much mixed with "America Mexicanism or America Africanism to heed such counsel. He voted the "republico" independent ticket last election, and of course he's badly mixed.

Alliancemen will stick together in politics. Some may get off the track by listening to unreasonable and bitter enemies to the Order, but they are compelled to return to the fold if true to their obligation, country and families, and to their special interests. Don't allow a bitter foe of the Order to bluff you in a conversation. If he acts the "natural born" ———, let him severely alone and have nothing to say to him. Such men have no influence worth a mention, but they may do some harm as it is corrupting and humiliating to listen to such harangues as they despise our Order and will not hesitate to say and do damaging things; a man that will do this is not a proper companion for an Alliancemen.

It is really amusing to hear some people trying to "speak up" for plutocracy and "monopolistic cod-fish aristocracy" and then claim to be followers of Thomas Jefferson. But some people will be inconsistent—the poor fellows are not posted on the reform movement, "that's what's the matter. They say they can't see what reform is needed, but they will see it "arter awhile" unless they are totally blind to the sovereign people's interests.

Some newspapers are very much "exorcised" about the Alliance getting into politics and pretend to fear that it will divide the Democratic party. We are nearly all good old Jeffersonian Democrats, and if there is a third party even in this county it was "bounced and treed" by those independents who will not submit to a fair convention. There's no harm in reading papers unfriendly to the Order, but should educate in its own literature, and not so willingly support bitter enemies in "sheep skin", whose entire text and sermon are to down it and its interests. If we only own 20 per cent of the property and pay eighty per cent of the taxes we should study politics with a purpose to elevate men to high emoluments who are of our Order and friendly to our interests. They (our enemies) have put us in the category of hewers of wood and drawers of water and we don't aim to follow them longer, third party or no third party. Stick together, Alliancemen, come weal or woe; stick as long as there's a "pea in the dish!"

The sub-treasury is a big bug bear for enemies to harp upon. If there were $60 per capita in circulation cotton would grow sell at 10 cents and 12½ cents per pound, and other produce in proportion, as well as dry goods, &c., and there would not be one-fourth the business failures. Our merchants are good men and very many of them are forced to the wall because of the money stringency. The farmers are nearly all "broke." Leading newspapers have long ago declared that there was not enough money in circulation to carry on a legitimate business, and why in the name of common sense and justice can't all professions join issue with farmers and demand the needed reform that our forefathers bequeathed us? The millionaires of the North and East own newspaper men opposed to us body and soul, and nearly all of those in authority, and have blinded all the opponents of reform by their secret arts and subtilty. Satan can't out wit those who oppose the Farmers' Alliance; as the preacher said, "get the devil out of you" and join us in this great and grand crusade of reform.

SOMETHING INTERESTING TO THOSE WHO TILL THE SOIL.

"There is no material progress that is well based and permanent without agricultural progress."

Colts will grow in winter as well as in summer if they only have a chance. Are yours growing now? Good care will prevent them from coming to a stand-still or going backward.

It is none too soon to begin training the colt if he is expected to keep up his end of the double-tree during next season's work, says the National Stockman. It will take several weeks to get his muscles hardened to the work and to teach him what you want him to do. Begin with him early so you have plenty of time, and then drive him every day, going a little farther and working him a little harder each time. Breaking—or training—the colt is a particular job and it requires a great amount of patience and care. Consequently it should be done when no other working is pressing.—American Farmer.

CRUEL PRACTICES.

A writer in the Stockman enumerates some thoughtless practices from which farm horses suffer, which can be remedied by a little thoughtful consideration. He says: The most cruel thing that farmers and others do with their horses is the practice of putting bridles on them without first thawing the bits out. Some of the neighbors say they haven't time to hold bridles by the fire. I usually dip my bits in the watering trough, which is just as good. As soon as they are wet they will not stick to the mouth. Some people will leave the breast straps down when they are not holding up a neck-yoke. Sometimes they have heavy irons on them, which strike the horses' legs quite hard. I have seen farmers plow for weeks with breast straps hitting the horses nearly every step they took. Let us try to be more considerate and thoughtful.—American Farmer.

NOTES FROM AMERICAN FARMER.

Persistent good care and feeding are among the principal elements of improvement.

Try experiments in a small way, but let the other fellow go into the heavy speculation.

The ground is very much enriched by a crop of sweet clover—some say more than by one of red.

Men are still learning how to grow silage fodder corn—a thing known twenty-five years ago.

They are beginning to find ways to admit farmer boys to agricultural colleges without an academic education.

New England is not the only section of the country where arable land is lying waste waiting for some one to come and use it. A recent report says that in the State of Virginia there are 15,000,000 acres of land lying untilled from year to year. It is owned by the proprietors of large estates, who have only enough money to cultivate a small portion of their holdings, and thus the rest of the land is compelled to lie waste.

A well-kept farm will sell for more than an ill-kept one of the same productive value.

Give your wife all the posy seeds she wants if she is not strong enough to get them anyway.

There is more gain in a given amount of food fed generously than in the same fed in stinted rations.

Salt is not so much of a fertilizer as it is a solvent of fertilizing material, thus rendering it available for plant food.

Foods are composed of simple elements—vegetable or animal, it is all the same, and have only the properties of those elements.

Both blue grass and orchard grass have values which cannot be ignored by the farmer. Clover and timothy may be the leaders of the grass. There are many farms where either one of these grasses would thrive less successfully than orchard grass. Not a few have been prejudiced against orchard grass until recently, and it is not yet universally recognized as a paying crop.

'Only one word, Gladys!' he pleaded. 'One little word!'

The young woman looked at the slender-shanked youth on his knees before her, and she opened her beautiful lips and softly said: 'Rats!'—Chicago Tribune.

THREE DEFINITIONS OF WOMAN.

'Woman is a lyre, the sweetness of whose tone depends entirely upon the skill of the player.' 'Woman is a creature with long hair and short ideas.' 'Woman is to man what the key is to the watch—she winds him up, regulates him, and keeps him going.'—New York Herald.

A GIRL'S ROOM.

The girls of the household should have cheerful rooms, where they may receive their girl friends and feel a pride in playing the hostess. Says a writer in the New York Tribune: Such a room need not be of a large size, but it should be daintily and neatly furnished. There is no better way in which you can educate a girl to be neat and orderly than to give her a properly furnished room, and require her to take proper care of it. In this way she receives her first lesson in thorough housekeeping and acquires habits of order and neatness.

The pleasure a girl takes from such a room as this, and the influence it exerts toward making her a womanly and domestic person, should in themselves be strong enough arguments to induce a mother to sacrifice some of the showy fittings of her parlor in order to provide comfortable rooms for her girls.

It should above all things be thoroughly neat, sunny and cheerful, and should be the girl's private room, and all the belonging should be her personal property. It should be her daily duty to keep it in thorough order.
